Peace in the Park

How to use the index

Sadly, we've reached the end of Farthing Wood Friends. In this last part, you will find an index to help you look up the plants and animals you've read about.

The index lists, in alphabetical order, the names of all the animals and plants that have appeared in Farthing Wood Friends. After each name you will find which section to look in and which number magazine. We have abbreviated the names of the sections and a key is given at the beginning of the index.

For example, albatross AA122 means that you can read about albatrosses in the All About section of magazine number 122.

If an animal or plant appears in more than one magazine, it is listed each time. For example, gorilla AA99, FF78 means you can find information on gorillas in magazine numbers 99 and 78.

Many of the animal and plants have been grouped together so, for example, you may not find barn owl or tawny owl but you will find owl, barn and owl, tawny.

Why don't you now try the All About quiz? It's a good opportunity for you to start looking things up in your index!

105: Old and new

Mossy knew that he hadn't a minute to lose if he was to save the other animals from the rats. He ran through tunnel after tunnel until finally he popped out at Laird's feet.

"I'm sorry," sobbed Mossy, "but the rats are attacking the animals in the Park. Fox and the others are doing their best but there are millions of them." Laird stopped to listen.

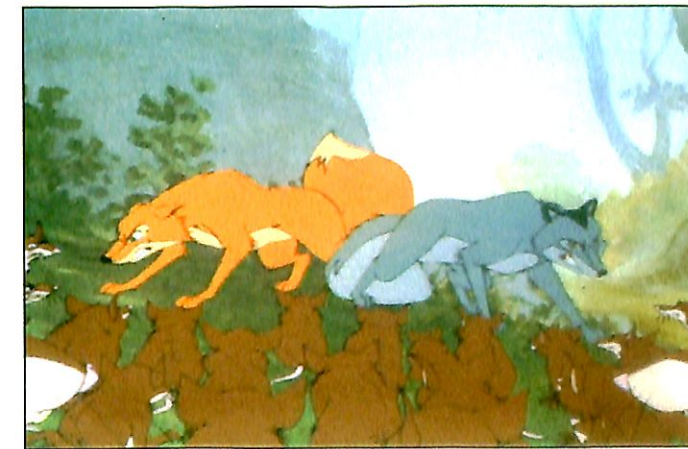

"Please!" cried Mossy, aware that time was rapidly running out. "Alright," said Laird, "we'll stampede over them and squash the lot." So Mossy climbed on to Laird's back and they all galloped off towards the pond.

"The rats! The rats!" cried Mossy, breathlessly. "You've got to help us!" Laird was annoyed. "Can't you see I'm giving my hinds a pep talk," he growled. "What a rude mole you are!"

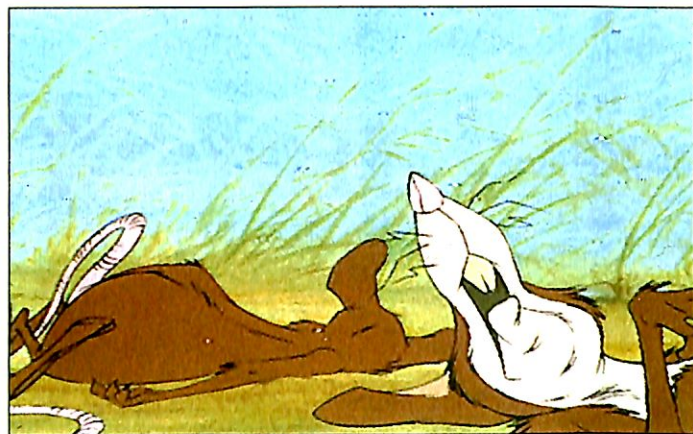

"Let's stampede over the rats," sneered Jeff. The other stags nodded and started to laugh. But Laird wasn't amused. "Who's the leader?" he growled. "I'll decide what we'll do."

Meanwhile the battle was still raging. Things were not looking good for Fox and his animals. One large group of rats had backed Charmer and Ranger into a corner while another was forcing Hurkel into the pond.

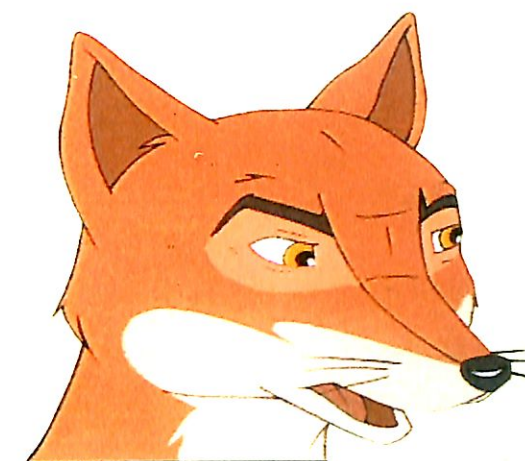

Suddenly Bully grabbed hold of Toad. "Look what I've found," he hissed, looking over at Spike, "my little friend, the toad." Spike marched up to Bully and demanded that he put Toad down. Bully just laughed in his face.

But just as Bully was about to take a bite, the stampeding herd came thundering out of the bushes. Some minutes later, when the dust settled, there were dead rats everywhere. Bully lay in a dazed heap on the floor.

Bully hung his head and the two rats slunk off. Toad looked over at Spike. "You're not leaving as well, matey?" he asked anxiously. "No," replied Spike, "all my friends are here."

Later that afternoon, Fox asked the animals to gather around the stone circle in the Park. "I've got something to say," announced Fox. "It's time for me to step down as leader."

"Are you alright, Fox?" asked Laird, looking over at the exhausted animal. Fox nodded, then turned to Bully and barked, "You had your chance and we've beaten you. Gather what's left of your rats and leave the Park."

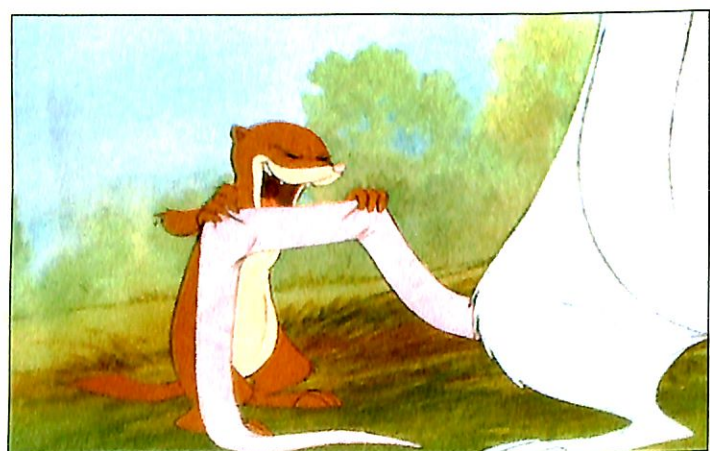

Bully slowly stood up and looked around him. He had been defeated. He saw Spike hiding behind the other animals and hissed at him, "You filthy, foxy-faced traitor!" Then he rounded up his remaining troops and prepared to leave.

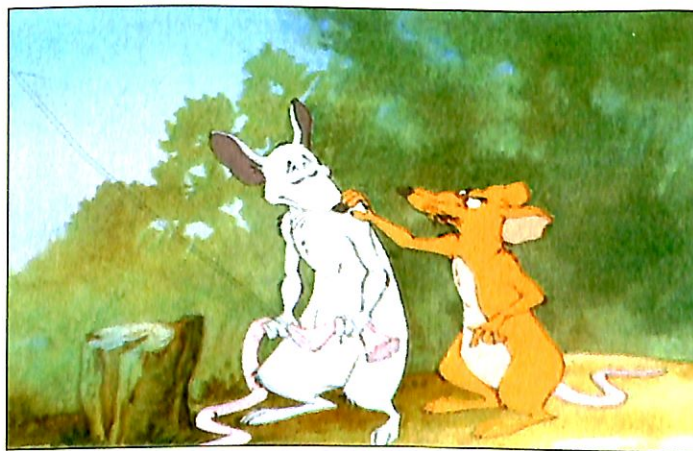

"But you can't!" cried Vixen, horrified. There was a hushed silence as Fox continued with his speech. "I've been thinking about this all summer," he said, "and my decision is final. Plucky will be your new leader."

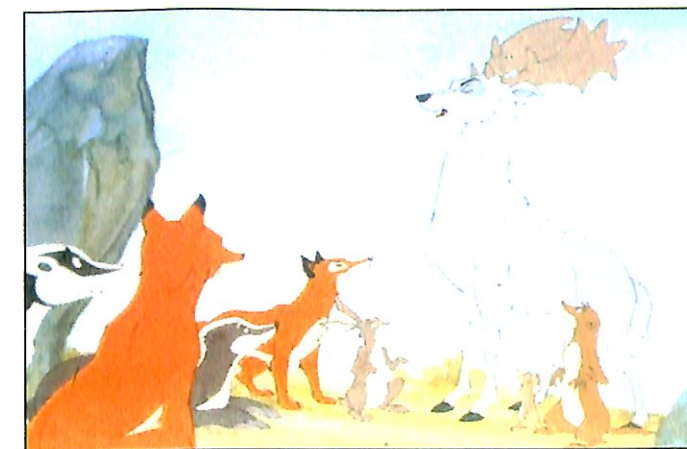

Plucky was overjoyed. Just then, however, Trey appeared. "I thought you'd been taken away," cried Vixen. "Yes, I was," replied the stag. "They mended my leg and put me in another park not far from here."

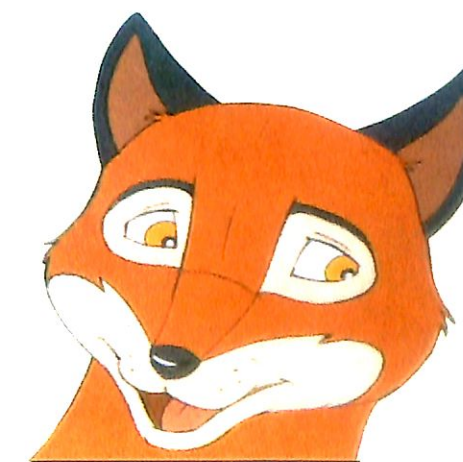

But before he could go, Cleo marched up to him and bit off his tail. Bully winced in pain, as he looked down at the pink stump that was left behind. This was the final insult!

The animals fell about laughing. Even the rats found it funny. Only Brat remained faithful to his leader. "Shall we go back to the sewers, boss," he sighed, "the nice, smelly sewers?"

Trey had some good news. "They're joining the two parks together," he said, "twice the space and absolutely no need for me to be bad-tempered." The animals all cheered.

Plucky then stepped forward and took up his new role as leader. "Tomorrow," he announced, "we will plan how to live together in peace and harmony in the true spirit of Farthing Wood."

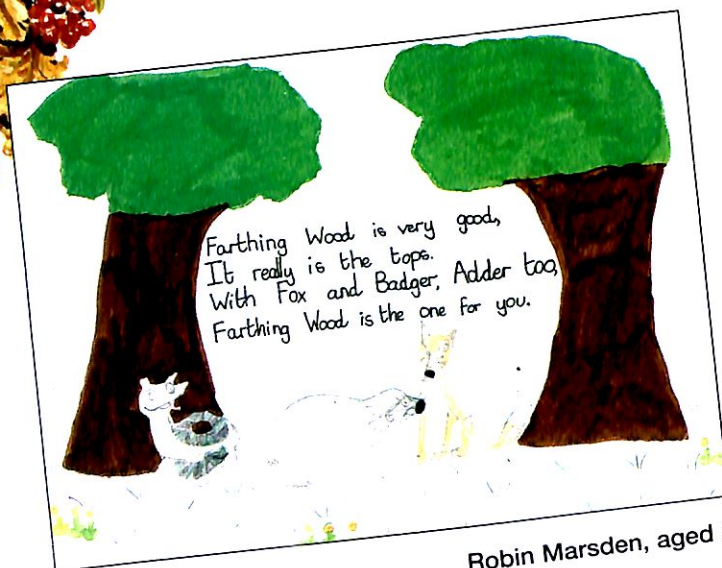

The End.

PARTY TIME!

Now that the animals in the Park were free of the rats once and for all, they decided to throw a massive party. Everyone was invited and it was decided that there would be no quarrels – even Weasel agreed to hold her tongue! There was a magic show to watch, live music to dance to and delicious food to eat. When it was all over, everyone agreed that it was the best party ever!

A RIDDLE

At the party Measly told Weasel a riddle. To find the answer, write down the first letter of each object.

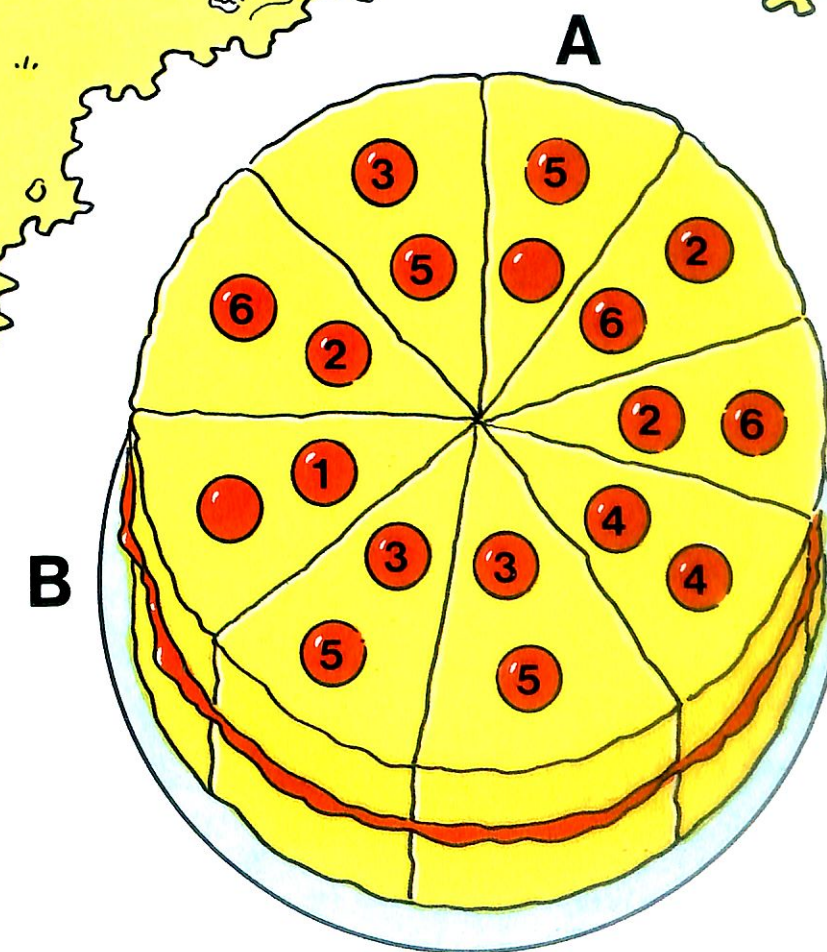

CAN YOU SPOT...

- 1 A game of tug of war
- 2 A singing rabbit
- 3 A melting ice cream
- 4 4 red party hats
- 5 Two lost shoes
- 6 A greedy mouse
- 7 A leaping frog
- 8 A sleepy squirrel
- 9 3 green balloons
- 10 A game of Piggy-in-the-middle

PARTY CAKE

Look at the numbers on the cake. Can you see a pattern to help you to work out which numbers are missing?

Puzzle it out ???

MINDREADING TRICK!

Here is a magic trick that will make your friends think you are a mindreader! Practise it until you can do it perfectly, then perform it in front of a group. Your job is to 'guess' the number that a member of the audience has chosen.

You will need: several scraps of paper, pencil, dried pea, dish, friend to act as your partner (you need to have told her what to do before the performance).

1 You need to leave the room while your partner asks a member of the audience to choose a number. Your partner should then write the number on a piece of paper. She should also screw the paper up into a ball, putting a dried pea inside it. Nobody must see her do this! Afterwards she should put the ball of paper into the dish.

2 Her next job is to write down lots of other numbers on scraps of paper. She should screw each one into a ball and add it to the dish. After she has done this, she needs to call you back into the room.

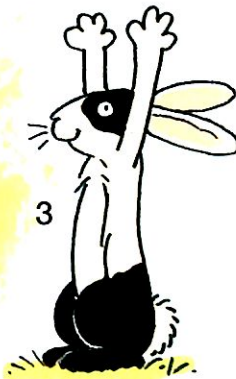

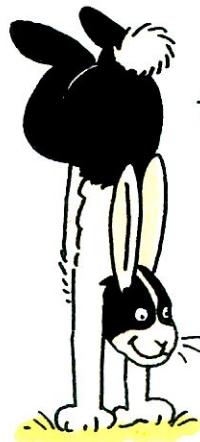

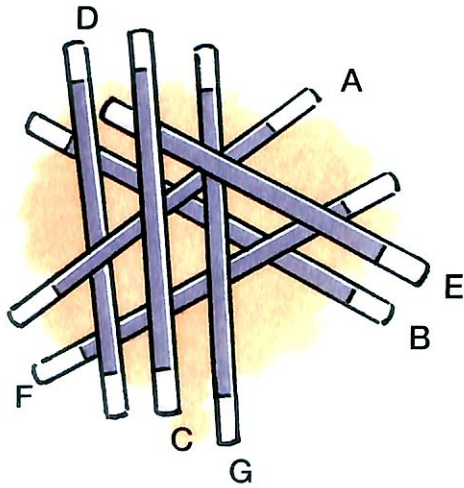

3 Ask everyone to think about the number that was chosen, then ask a member of the audience to stir the papers in the dish.

4 Put your hand in the dish and squeeze each ball of paper gently until you come to the one with the pea. When you open it up, make sure you secretly remove the pea so nobody can see it. Then announce the number and watch the audience gasp!

WHICH WANDS?

In which order do you need to pick up the wands, so that the top one is removed each time?

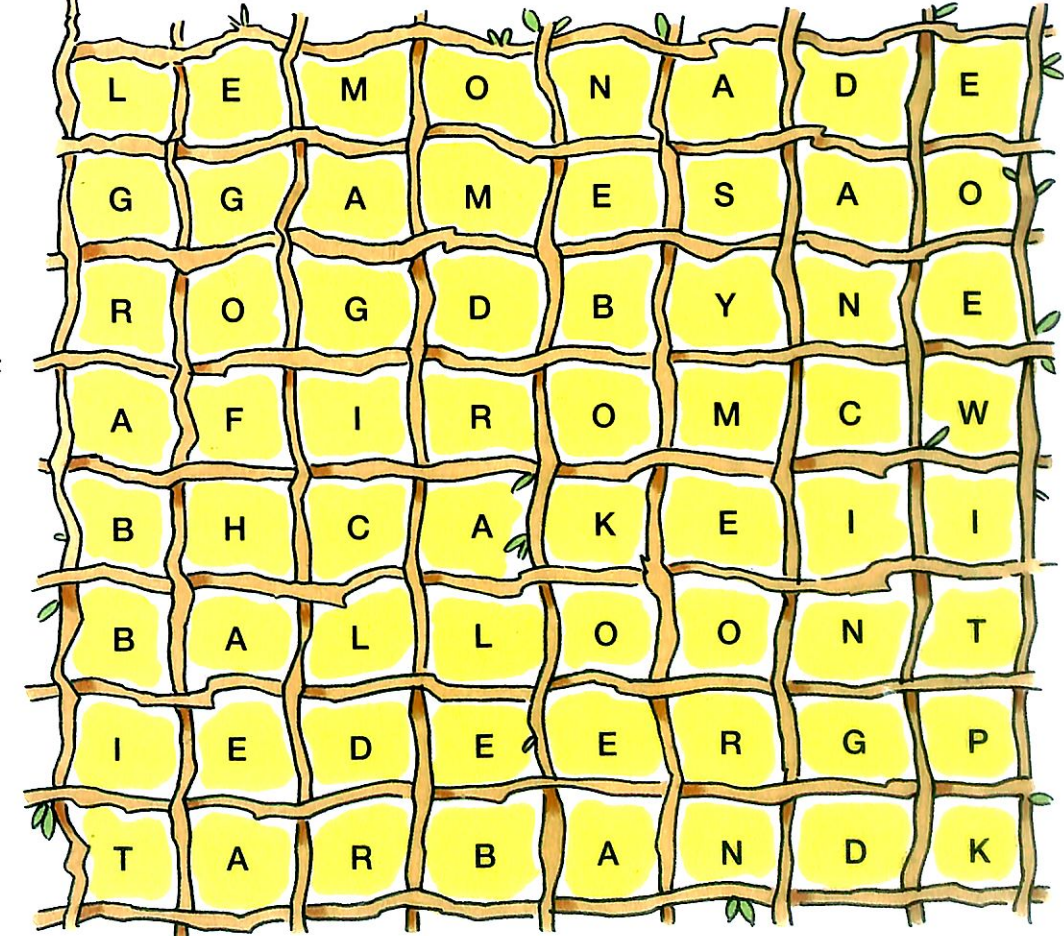

OUT OF A HAT
The magician has taken six rabbits out of a hat. They are all exactly the same except for one – can you spot the odd one out?

PARTY MESSAGE

Can you find the eight words listed in the wordsearch? When you have circled them all, work your way along the wordsearch from left to right looking for any letters that have not been circled. Write these spare letters (in order) in the spaces below to spell out a message from the Farthing Wood animals!

lemonade cake magic games

Putting your height chart together

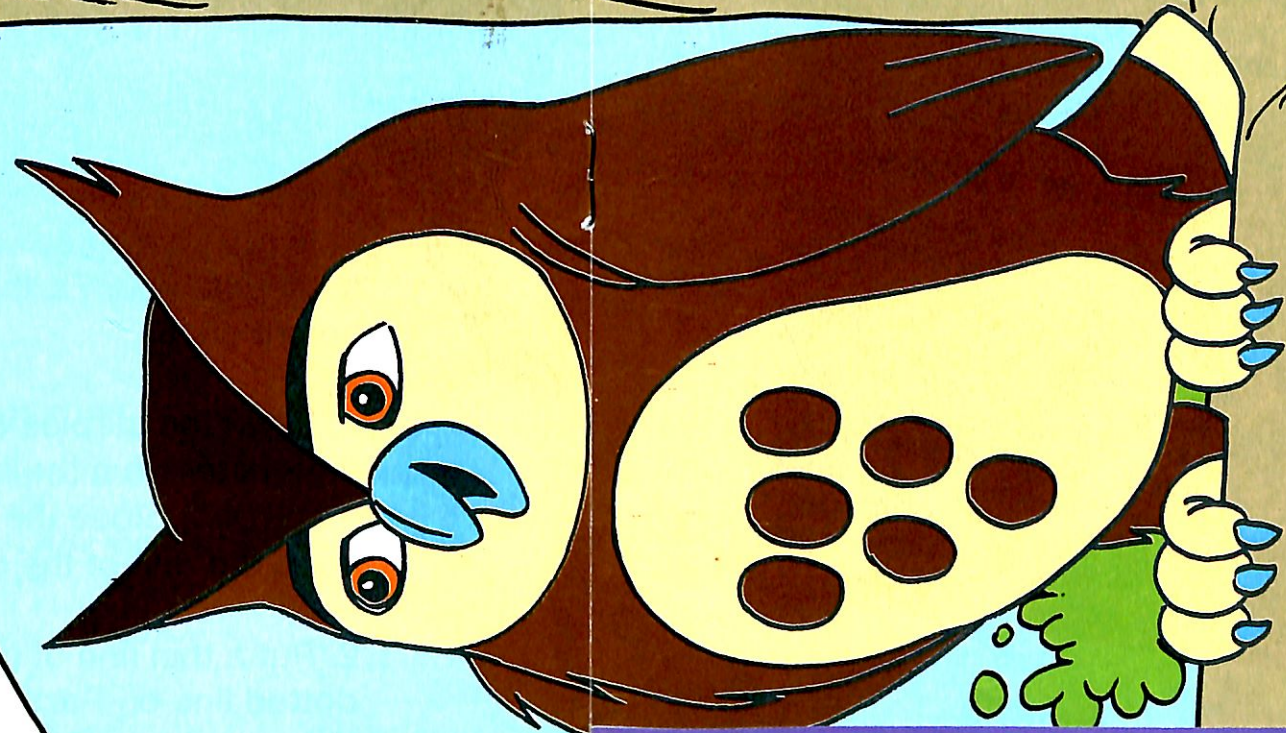

This is Part 4, the final poster which makes up your Farthing Wood Friends height chart.

1. Open the staples carefully and remove the poster from the centre of the magazine. Close the staples again to keep the rest of the pages together.
2. Put a thin line of glue just below the dotted line on Part 4.
3. Place Parts 1, 2 and 3 on Part 4, overlapping them so that the top of Part 3 touches the dotted line at the bottom of Part 4.
4. Use Blu-Tack or sticky tape to attach the completed height chart to a wall. You should fix it so that the bottom of the chart just touches the floor.
